DEFENSE WORK TURNS WHEELS IN POTTERIES

Industry Is Getting Its Share of Army and Navy Contracts

WORKERS ACTIVE IN SEBRING, SALEM

Circular Kilns and Other Modern Equipment Speed Output

Defense preparations are bringing prosperity back to district pottery centers.

Here, the Salem China company's plant is running at near capacity, unusual for this time of the year. Approximately 500 are on the payroll.

The general upswing in the pottery industry is probably more noticeable at nearby Sebring, town of nearly 4,000 persons. There three plants are working full time and employing more than 1,750 men and women.

A few years ago, during the depression, outlook was black, with all three plants practically closed down. But now the boom is on and the pottery industry is getting its share of Army and Navy contracts.

700 At Limoges

The largest of the Sebring plants is the Limoges China Co., which employs more than 700 persons. The others are the Royal China Co., employing about 600, and the French-Saxon China Co., with about 450 workers.

All three plants have made extensive improvements during the past two years. The latest gas-fired circular kilns have replaced the old upright type here as well as in the Salem and East Liverpool pot districts.

Government orders to supply dishes, cups and saucers for army camps have been plentiful. Plants in Wellsville and Bedford, O.; Wheeling, Clarksburg and Marion, W. Va.; Syracuse, N. Y.; Trenton, N.J., and Beaver Falls, Falls Creek and New Castle, Pa., are filling War department orders.

The Shemano Pottery Co. of New Castle has a $160,079 contract and the Hall China Co. of East Liverpool one for $117,016 to supply the Navy department with chinaware.

The East Liverpool concern will make a total of 714,016 pieces and already has shipped two carloads of ware to a distributing point in Jeffersonville, Ind.

Addition Planned

The firm is planning a $30,000 addition to house a decoration shop and warehouse facilities.

The Sterling China Co. at Wellsville now has a $34,646 contract from the Navy department, the 10th the firm has received from the War and Navy departments.

C. C. Pomeroy, Sr., president, said his company had been working since last November on a Navy contract and eight individual Army orders. Employment is expected to increase 30 per cent, he said.

Complete Report of Activities Made After Examination

The City of Salem, with a case load ranging at times from 14 to 64, spent $7,856.75 in administering relief or indigent care during 1940, it was revealed today in the report of the pre-audit examination covering all relief expenditures of Columbiana county and its cities.

State Relief Examiner J. T. Hoggott of Youngstown, who conducted the audit, released the report which also showed that Salem closed the year with a cash balance in fund of $10,359.11. This compared with a cash balance of $2,075.68 on Jan. 1, 1940.

Total funds available to the city during the year for relief were listed at $18,235.84. Total expenditures of $7,856.73 include outstanding incumbrances of $331.19, according to the report.

15 Families On Relief

OFFICERS ARE RE-ELECTED AT FARM MEETING

Mrs. Elizabeth Pow, Secretary-Treasurer, begins 14th Term

ATTENDANCE FOR INSTITUTE HIGH

Dr. Allen A. Stockdale, New York, speaks at High School Tonight

Attendance at the Salem Farmers' Institute, which opened yesterday morning in the Memorial building, is equal to, if not slightly better, than that of previous institutes, leaders of the farm group said today as the two-day program neared a close.

At least 500 persons crowded the Memorial building auditorium-gymnasium for last night's program, which featured half-hour concert by the Mahoning County All-Girls' grange band. Slightly more than 200 were in attendance when the institute opened while many others came for the afternoon program.

This morning's attendance figure was estimated at about 250. This afternoon's is expected to be higher.

Officers Re-elected

Officers of the institute were re-elected at a business session this morning. They include: President, Frank L. Vincent; vice president, Frank W. Fultz; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Elizabeth Pow.

The Salem institute is in its 13th year and Mrs. Pow's election is for her 14th consecutive term. Price Cope, who guides the institute as program chairman, has been active in this capacity for seven years.

A large turnout is expected tonight to hear Dr. Allen A. Stockdale, representative of the National Association of Manufacturers, who has been brought here through the efforts of the Salem Business Bureau.

A loaded .32-calibre revolver which the gunman dropped when he fled was being examined today for fingerprints. The weapon, found on the floor of the garage by Patrolman Nerr Gaunt, was taken to Youngstown by Police Chief Ralph Stoffer for examination by fingerprint experts.

Simon, a meat market proprietor, told police that as he got into his car this morning to go to work, the youth, who apparently had been hiding in the garage, opened an opposite car door and pointed the gun at him.

Simon said that as the bandit fled onto the seat and ordered him to "shut up," he attempted to grab the youth. The surprised gunman fled from the garage and was believed to have been picked up by someone in another machine.

Chief Stoffer said he believed the youth was the one who obtained $8 when he snatched a pocketbook from Miss Blanche Chapman as she entered her apartment on N. Broadway Monday night.

HOPE ISN'T ENOUGH

One year ago, Germany was frantically busy with preparations for a spring drive, just as it no doubt is busy now. France was talking about a phony war and wondering what made the Germans think they could get around the Maginot line. Across the channel, the British were reassuring one another that business would go on as usual.

What happened is current history, too recent to mention. It's also too recent to forget. France fell, as it was doomed to fall by its own internal weakness and the failure of its ally, Great Britain, to understand in time what the war was about. The United States woke up with a cry of alarm when it looked as though Britain might fall, too.

Yes, it's too recent to forget. "You would be more alarmed at the prospect of your own danger if we fell," said Premier Reynaud prophetically to an American correspondent weeks before Germany's spring drive began, explaining that Nazi strength had been underestimated. Yet today, British ability to offset Nazi strength is providing a false sense of security. America still isn't preparing to face the worst. It is hoping, instead, for the best.

Hope isn't enough. The whole post-war world, outside the aggressor nations, was built on hope that aggression wouldn't materialize. In the United States, isolationists are still hoping that Germany won't win, that Japan won't win, or that if they do win they will want to be friendly with the United States, or that if they prove unfriendly the United States will be able to make friends with Japan, or that if it has to stand alone—130,000,000 against 800,000,000—it will pull a miracle and evade the consequences of not facing that eventuality when it still had a fighting chance to save itself.

THOUGHT FOR THE TIMES

Inflation, as little children now know as well as they know their own names, is what happens when demand is greater than supply. Therefore, the way to prevent inflation is to keep the demand from becoming greater than the supply.

Specifically, the way to keep prices from rising in a war boom is to keep the buying public from demanding more things than can be readily furnished. The obvious way to do this is to keep the buying public from getting money into its hands more rapidly than the agencies of supply can take up the slack.

Taxation seems to be the answer—taxation to take the fruits of the war boom away from the public to finance government spending. Thus it is being proposed seriously by thoughtful experts that national defense should be put on a pay-as-you-go basis, even though that would mean actual hardship for those who do the paying. At the same time, it is being proposed that all local government cut expenses to ease the burden.

This would entail reversing what is perhaps the first rule of political survival, which is never to vote against an appropriation or for a tax bill. Legislators have hung on for years by following that rule. The mere suggestion now that they should reverse it to save the country, instead of themselves, must be shocking them beyond measure.

AN ABRUPT DEPARTURE

As ambassador to Great Britain, John G. Winant would be as abrupt a departure from tradition as can be conjured up. No one can be blamed for wondering why he has been conjured up, therefore.

Winant is a former Republican governor of New Hampshire. He has spent his adult life in public service. He is not a millionaire, or even a reasonable facsimile of a millionaire. His specialty is social problems. His most recent job has been director of the International Labor office.

He is about as far from a dollar diplomat as it would be possible to get. Most ambassadors to Great Britain, furthermore, have been heavy contributors to the party whose leader appointed them, whereas Winant is a Republican. One of two things must be true.

Either the purpose is to make a gesture to the British working people whose morale will be the deciding factor in the war, or the Democrats had to raid the opposition party to find a man to send to the scene of Armageddon.

DIMES FOR HUMANITY

It seems entirely possible that President Roosevelt, when reviewing his eventful years as chief executive may count public interest in the campaign against infantile paralysis among the greatest accomplishments. Though it required no legislation and was entirely voluntary from the outset, there can be no doubt now that long after some things which seemed more important at the time have been forgotten the spirit of the "march of dimes" still will be vital.

The President, himself, is a victim of paralysis, and his courageous struggle to overcome the handicap of his lameness has been an inspiration to thousands of others. In his name and in his honor, a great national organization to combat the disease has been established so firmly that it undoubtedly will become an American institution, like the annual drive to raise money to fight tuberculosis.

THE STARS SAY:

For Friday, January 24

ACCORDING to the lunar and mutual aspects this should be another day of mixed influences, with the energies and mentality under favorable stimuli for success and fine constructive work yet beset by the danger or loss through undercurrents or treachery, fraud and sinister intrigues.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year calling for restraints, discretion and subtle treatment in many directions, with particular regard to financial loss, loss of prestige and reputation and also of health. But the mentality and judgment are under such fine stimulus.

A child born on this day may possess splendid mentality and energy with much practical ability and some artistic skill.

BALANCE OF POWER

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

The lifting of our "moral embargo" against Russia, with the idea of improving relations between Washington and Moscow, has set tongues wagging as to whether it also is calculated to erect a barrier between the Soviet and the Triple Alliance—Germany, Italy and Japan.

This speculation is natural for two reasons. One is that there are few ways in which the United States could render Britain greater aid in the war against the "three musketeers" than to swing the Soviet into the Anglo-American camp. The other is the Japanese-American rift, and the efforts of Tokyo to bolster its position by making friends with Russia.

It is an interesting circumstance that the day before Washington made its friendly gesture toward Moscow, the British government informed parliament that efforts to improve relations with the Soviet had been at a standstill since Oct. 22. It was added that the next move was up to the Muscovites.

One reason for the hitch, in my view, is that there is a very considerable hostility to Russia among conservative Britons because of fear of Communism.

They refuse to accept the Soviet claim that Communism is the highest form of democracy, but view it as a subversive influence which has been trying to sabotage the British government since the early days of Bolshevism.

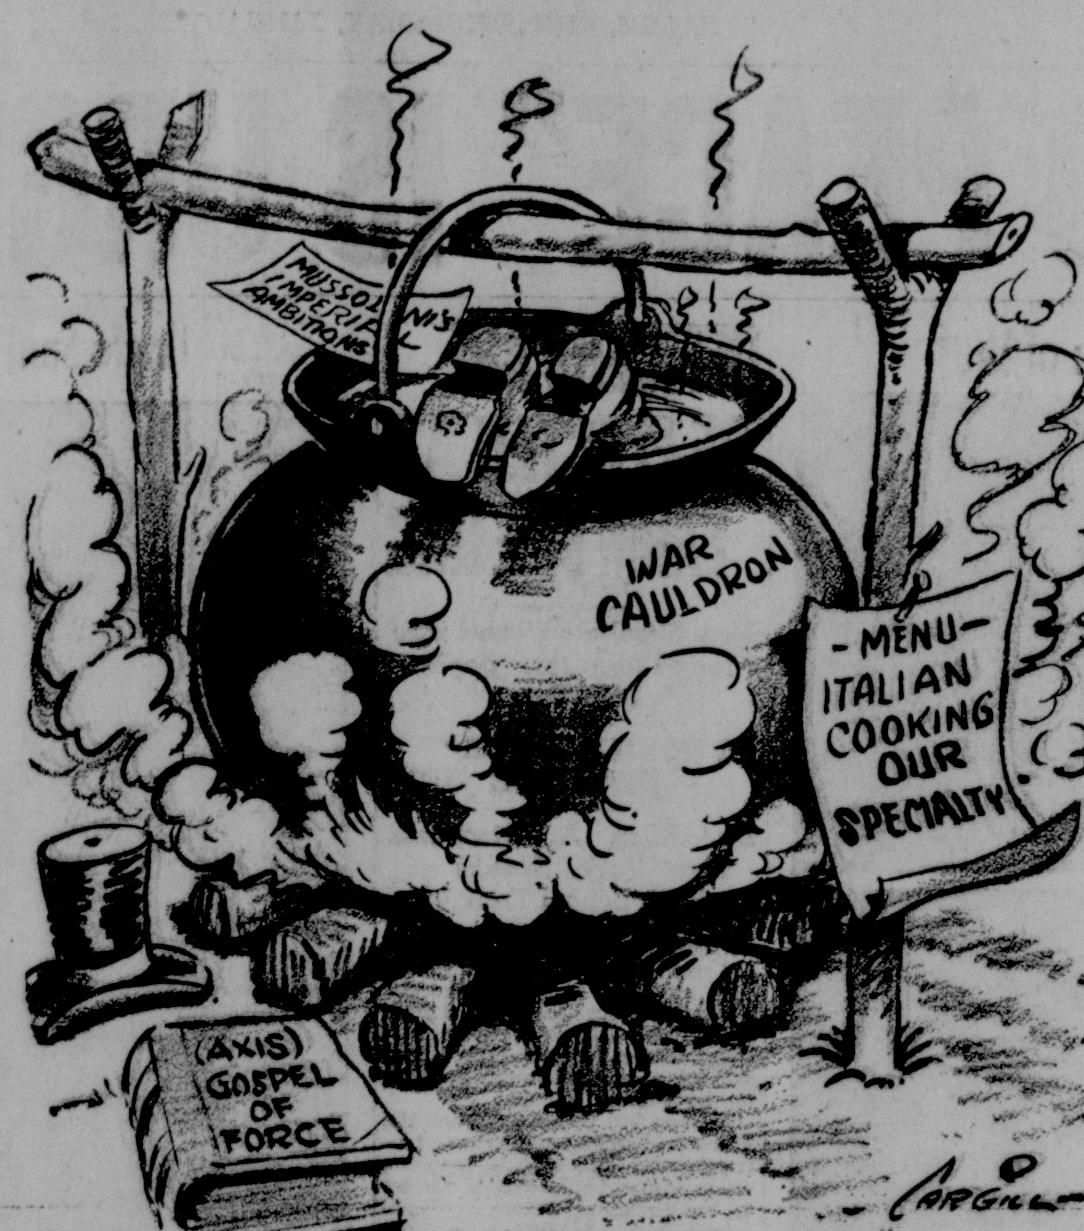

The same day that the Anglo-Russian hitch was announced, the British government also banned the Communist newspaper, The Daily Worker. The paper was accused of "systematic publication calculated to foment opposition to prosecution of the war to a successful issue."

Just to round out the picture, the Soviet yesterday reaffirmed its policy of neutrality. This is to be insured "by indefatigable strengthening of the economic and defense capacity of the country."

Russia may be said to hold the balance of power in the European dispute. That's why both sides are trying to gain her support.

The income tax this year is not only reaching into the lower brackets, it's sweeping out the corners.

"NEW ORDER" IN AFRICA

SINUS INFECTION MAY START EARLY

Dr. Clendening Discusses Treatment Possibilities

BY LOGAN CLDENENING, M. D.

The sinuses of the nose are very subject to the implantation of a chronic infection. They consist of a number of ramifications and pockets covered with mucous membrane, and since they are constantly exposed to the germs of the air which may get pocketed, it is not surprising that sinus disease is common. In fact, the real wonder is that everybody does not have it.

While the manifestation of sinus disease, which are a discharge from the nose, headache, and a long drawn-out process and may well begin in childhood with sinus infection at that period of life. All the more reason, therefore, for early diagnosis and treatment at the stage where it can be successful.

I say this with emphasis because the lung complications of chronic sinus trouble once established are very resistant to treatment. The asthma which results from this is the worst form of asthma. Many people later in life are invalids on account of chronic infection of the bronchial tubes with absorption of toxic material constantly going on, coughing and expectoration. They are always thin, have no appetite, are subject to drafts, and cold weather makes them very uncomfortable and they, as the saying goes, "catch cold" repeatedly and very easily.

Treatment of these cases is best accomplished by removing them to a mild climate and by postural drainage, which is lying with the head down so that the infectious material will drain out. This should be done two or three times a day.

FARMERS MAY BE MANUFACTURERS

Louisian Suggests They Set Up Own Canneries, Other Processes

(By Associated Press) LASAS CITY, Jan. 23—Paul M. Knudsen came up today with an idea that may turn thousands of farmers into manufacturers.

Knudsen, executive secretary of National Retail Farm Equipment Association, outlined it to the Farm Implement and Hardware Manufacturers' fifty-second annual convention.

Farmers lose too much of their time and crop profits to middlemen, said the St. Louisan. "So shouldn't they set up canning, freezing plants and processing machinery on their farms, plow under some of the taking of the middlemen and more money?"

In The Red

Red production has put the farmer by and large, in the red. If we can't take back some of the farming chores he turned over to us in the machine age, we expect an American peasant when suggested the farmer why could his own corn, tomatoes and make his own soup but sell it to his town or well.

"You know that last year the farmer spent $1,000,000,000 of their income for food?" he asked.

A farmer can't go on that.

That's one of the reasons the population is drifting into towns."

Fears Revolution

It's why Mulliken predicts "a revolution in the farm field as far as the one that came with steam and power machinery."

When it comes—I hope to say 1950—the farmer is going to process his own soybeans, cotton seed for plastic bases and steering wheels, cowls and other articles.

He is going into the cellulose business, too, indirectly by processing stalks and grain straw, like freezing in his own refrigerator plant will keep perishable until he can sell as he needs it and as a victim of a market."

Welder's Torch Burns Night And Day On U. S. Orders

(By Associated Press)

GROTON, Conn., Jan. 23—The welder's torch burns day and night as the Electric Boat company strives to turn out 41 submarines in record time for the United States navy.

A vast industrial plant of steel and brick is rapidly taking form on 50 acres of ground.

The federal government is spending millions on a program here that ultimately envisages a submarine a month.

Nearly 4,000 men of varied skills are working today; within a year 2,200 more will be added.

Facilities Expanded

To make it possible for the Electric Boat company to build 41 of the 71 subs the navy hopes to add to the fleet by 1944, Uncle Sam already has contracted to spend $4,600,000 on the concern's facilities.

One of the first tasks was to give a face lifting to the Thames river, renowned scene of Harvard-Yale crew rivalry. Two acres jutting into the water from the company's old plant were reclaimed with stone and gravel to form a sturdy foundation for new ship ways.

Seven new ways have been ordered to augment four already in operation.

A large, roofed fabrication shop goes with each way. Three brick storehouses, several smaller buildings and two piers already have been erected, while new purchases include 30 major machine tools (20 more soon to be acquired), additional rolling stock and travel cranes.

Up To Younger Workers

But, as one high-ranking naval officer supervising construction put it, "the success of the submarine program rests in the ability of the younger workers."

Mounting Grain Surpluses Worry Producers, Lawmakers

CHICAGO, Jan. 23—Ever mounting record grain surpluses in the western hemisphere posed new problems today for producers and legislators.

Favorable weather conditions, increased acreages and greater yields per acre in North America have resulted in larger carryovers for each of the past several years until all storage space was glutted.

Exports Cut Down

The disappearance of export markets, cut off by the war blockade of most of continental Europe, leads to the huge surpluses weekly.

United States supplies as of July 1, 1941, were estimated by R. O. Cronwell, crop statistician, at 723,000,000 bushels in all positions, compared with 615,000,000 in mid-1940.

Broomhall, British crop authority, said that Canada was discussing the possibility of wheat acreage control next spring because supplies were reaching the burdensome stage after three consecutive years of heavy yields.

Disposal of the probable Argentine wheat surplus was admitted a serious problem, according to a Buenos Aires report from the Canadian government's official representative there. On the basis of a 270,000,000 bushel new crop, he said, the exportable surplus would be about 172,000,000 bushels.

He added that it was estimated that Brazil and other neighboring nations would absorb about 40,000,000 bushels, Spain about 15,000,000 and Great Britain, provided tonnage was available, might buy around 37,000,000 bushels, which would still leave a substantial amount to worry about."

The official Argentine crop report was expected to be released later today but private reports indicated that the 1941 surplus of all grains was estimated at around 100,000,000 bushels.

Adopt Control Plan

The three principal American wheat production nations, United States, Canada and Argentina, have adopted some sort of federal price supporting plan.

The third official Canadian government report on spring wheat indicated 525,000,000 bushels yesterday, compared with 522,000,000 estimated on Nov. 8, 1940. The total Canadian wheat crop estimate was 551,390,000 bushels, compared with 547,179,000 last November.

In commenting on the United States surplus, Cronwell said: "We expect consumption and exports for the first six months of 1941 to be about 325,000,000 bushels, compared with 320,000,000 for the same period a year ago, allowing for expected improvement in domestic conditions and further decrease in exports. Thus a net decrease in total consumption for the year of about 15,000,000 bushels, if confirmed by the future, would leave a carry-over of 380,000,000 to 400,000,000 bushels."

Gale Page, Lola, Rosemary and Priscilla Lane in "Four Mothers" at the State Friday and Saturday

One of the most successful and popular of the "family" series is the one which started with "Four Daughters," continued with "Four Wives," and has as its latest addition, "Four Mothers".

The film, featuring Priscilla, Rosemary and Loa Lane and Gale Page in the title roles, shows Friday and Saturday at the State. Claude Rains, Jeffrey Lynn, Eddie Albert, Frank McHugh and Dick Foran and May Robson are again in the supporting roles.

The Lemp family holds a reunion with the girls, their husbands and baby daughters all at home for the event. A hurricane sweeps away the land development which was counted on to bring security to the oldest daughter and her husband, taking with them the money the funds the townspersons had invested on the Lemp name guarantee. The music composer husband of the youngest girl loses his job. It takes Adam, the father of the girls, and his music to right the chaos in the family's affairs.

The last of the series is rated as the best, with sterling work by Rains and Gale Page.

Concluding tonight is a comedy with more than its share of laughs, "Honeymoon for Three," featuring George Brent, Ann Sheridan, Osa Massen and Charlie Ruggles.

Student Paradise

BERKELEY, Calif.—Fifteen hundred University of California students jammed South Hall to enroll in Prof. Frederic L. Paxton's new course in American civilization.

Four students fainted in the rush. Police were called to help maintain order. Finally, the class was transferred to the two largest lecture rooms on the campus. The rooms are linked by a public address system.

Popular? Of course. No examinations will be given. Credit will pass solely upon attendance.

LINDBERGH WOULD NEGOTIATE PEACE

Aid to Britain Is All Mistake, Flier Tells Committee

Lindbergh said that "a total difference of about 10,000 thoroughly modern fighting planes plus reserves" would "insure American security regardless of the outcome of the war in Europe."

Later it might be necessary to change the number, he said, adding a prepared statement, but that would depend on circumstances.

"But an industry capable of building and maintaining a 10,000-plane airforce would, I believe, have adequate flexibility to meet any emergency," Lindbergh said.

As for a transoceanic air invasion, accompanied by the landing of troops, Lindbergh said that was "utterly impossible." Further, he said, that while bombing raids from across the Atlantic could do "considerable damage on peace-time standards," in time of war the cost would be tremendous, "enemy losses would be large, and the effect on our military position negligible."

His 10,000-warplane figure compared with the approximately 25,000 planes of all types the army has on hand or on order and the 10,000-plane goal toward which the navy alone is working. President Roosevelt has announced a goal of 50,000 modern fighting planes together with a production capacity of $3,000 a year.

A half hour before the tall, blond aviator entered, the big hearing room was packed with people eager to see the man who made aviation history by flying alone from New York to Paris in 1927.

TWO PERSONS DIE IN PLANE CRASH

Transport Wrecked As It Approaches St. Louis Airport Today

TWA reported this list of passengers and their injuries:

C. W. Joergen, Kirkwood, Mo., broken back, condition serious.

J. S. Waiters, Chicago, broken ribs and cuts.

Mrs. Mary McCloskey, Burbank, Calif., wife of TWA employee, T. E. McCloskey, skull fracture; condition serious.

Tom Stoddard, Los Angeles, wrenched arm.

Mrs. L. Hiden, San Pedro, Calif., internal injuries, serious condition.

Joe Washburn, enroute to St. Louis, address unknown.

C. B. Shaw, Kansas City.

Stuart Sanford, TWA mechanic, Burbank.

Mrs. F. E. Ekey, Philadelphia, who boarded the plane at Los Angeles.

E. C. Griggs, Columbus, Ohio. Instrument flying conditions prevailed at the time of the flight.

The plane smashed on its belly in the back yard of a farm house, about three blocks south of the airport, and careened into a clump of trees.

The sheriff's office reported the plane caught fire but the flames were extinguished by the airport fire department.

"The plane is a terrific wreck. I don't see how anybody got out alive," a deputy sheriff said.

The control tower of the airport said the ship, which was due in from Los Angeles at 2:34 a. m. EST, but was running behind schedule, passed over the field at 5:13 a. m.

The pilot then made a left bank and was preparing to swing in for a landing when the crash occurred. He was flying at an altitude of about 400 feet. The ceiling was 500 feet.

JACKSON SEEN AS BENCH FAVORITE

Movement Under Way, However, In Behalf of Senator Byrnes

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Picking a successor for Associate Justice James Clark McReynolds on the supreme court bench became a major occupation in the capital today, and the name most frequently mentioned in the unofficial speculation was that of Attorney General Jackson.

President Roosevelt, however, kept his own counsel and the White House was barren of hints as to who would receive the sixth supreme court appointment. Mr. Roosevelt has had since taking office.

Even those with other ideas conceded for the moment, that Jackson had the edge, as the most probable choice. Some, however, thought the coveted post might go to Senator Byrnes (D-SC), whose nomination would satisfy those who believe a southerner should be picked. It was reported that Senator Majority Leader Barkley (Ky.) and Senators Harrison (Miss) and Glass (Va.), all Democrats, urged Byrnes' name in a late conference with Mr. Roosevelt yesterday.

Besides Jackson and Byrnes, others discussed were:

François Biddle, solicitor general.

Charles Fahy, assistant solicitor general.

Senator Wagner (D-N.Y.).

Former Senator Ashurst (D-Ariz.).

Former Senator Minton (D-Ind.), now an executive assistant to the president.

Harold M. Stephens, Wiley Rutledge and Justin Miller, associate justices of the U. S. court of appeals for the District of Columbia.

Samuel G. Bratton, circuit court judge in the tenth federal district and former Democratic senator from New Mexico.

Florence E. Allen of Cleveland, circuit court judge in the sixth federal district.

Robert P. Patterson, undersecretary of war, a Republican.

Lloyd K. Garrison, dean of University of Wisconsin law school.

James M. Landis, dean of Harvard Law school and former chairman of the securities commission.

Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago.

Samuel Rosenman and Ferdinand Pecora, judges of the New York supreme court.

Donald R. Richberg, former NRA administrator.

Federal Circuit Judge William Dernier of San Francisco.

J. D. Wickham, member of the Wisconsin supreme court.

Justice McReynolds, in his letter of resignation to President Roosevelt yesterday, fixed its effective date as Feb. 1. Actually the court days of the 78-year-old jurist were over, for the tribunal adjourned does not convene again until Feb. 3—McReynolds' 79th birthday.

Ravenna Lady's Troubles Ceased; Feels Like A New Person

Says She Suffered From Terrible Headaches and Was Unable to Sleep. Was Hardly Able to Do Her Housework. Her Body Pained All Over Until TONJON No. 3 Eliminated Her Distressing Symptoms."

MRS. ETHEL HAMILTON

Almost everyone who tries TONJON speaks well of it, so if you who read this need a good laxative medicine or a mild diuretic to your kidneys to relieve many symptoms due to those troubles give TONJON a trial; no doubt you'll soon be praising it, too.

Mrs. Ethel Hamilton of 121 Popular Ave., Ravenna, Ohio, tells how her troubles have ceased since taking TONJON. She states:

"For some time I had been feeling so bad that I was hardly able to do my housework. I felt nervous most all the time, my sleep was light and failed to provide that refreshed rested feeling and I often had thumping headaches. My back would ache and I never knew how it was not to have an agonizing pain in my neck. I used TONJON only a few weeks before I could notice a big improvement in my ailments."

"My stomach was in a daily upset condition; I was too thin and my appetite was poor. I had to watch what foods I ate very carefully."

The TONJON Health Representative is at Broadway Lease Drug Store, Salem, Ohio, and will be glad to explain to you just why TONJON 1-2-3 has been so unusually successful.

Coach of Rose Bowl Champs May Turn Down "School" Offers

SHAUGHNESSY IS UP IN AIR OVER "CLASS" REQUEST

Not Fair to Stanford To Explain "T" Formation, Says Champs' Tutor

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—There might be such a thing as a football coach outsmarting himself—even in the off season.

At least Clark Shaughnessy is giving the matter some thought as he ponders numerous requests that he divulge the secret of the Stanford Indians' amazing gridiron success.

The coach of the Rose Bowl champions and currently the most successful advocate of the "T" formation in college football has received 14 bids for his service at coaching schools. That's a tribute, but let Shaughnessy explain:

"I'd have to do a conscientious job . . . I'd have to give 'em all I could on our offense. That would include some stuff on defenses against it, too. It would be available, of course, to a lot of our opponents, and I don't know if that would be fair to Stanford."

Hasn't Made Up Mind

"We plan to go on from where we are now with the offensive style. So I suppose that I could use our 1940 plays and variations in coaching school or in a game of some kind. But even so it might be unfair to our own chances. So I haven't made up my mind definitely about anything yet."

And that goes, too, should an All-Star coaching bid come his way. He does not deny that he would be hesitant to send a "T" formation against another "T" formation team such as the professional Chicago Bears. Such a game naturally would attract the coaching fraternity to see how the respective mentors played their defense against the attack.

"I've had 300 letters from High school coaches asking for pointers," he said. "And so far as defenses are concerned . . . well, we played 10 games and we saw 10 different defenses." (He neglected to add that Stanford still won all 10 games.)

SKATE STARS WILL BID FOR TITLES

LA CROSSE, Wis., Jan. 23.—The nation's outstanding speed blade artists, including former Olympic stars and men title winners in the last three meets, will match strides in eight divisions at the National Outdoor Speed Skating championships Saturday and Sunday.

Two former champions are in the field that will challenge Leo Freisinger, Chicago sprint star and former Olympian who puts his senior men's crown on the block.

Ken Bartholomew, Minneapolis speed merchant who captured the national title in 1939, and Vic Ronchetti of Chicago, the 1938 titleholder and former North American champion, will be out to regain the crown.

MacPHAIL JR. IS HEAD OF NEW CLUB

READING, Pa., Jan. 23.—Equipped with a college degree in economics, 23-year-old Leland Stanford MacPhail, Jr., took charge today of one of his daddy's newest baseball farms.

He's the new business manager of the Reading club of the Interstate league, and one of the youngest executives in Class B baseball.

"Ever since I was an eighth grader, I've always wanted to be connected with a ball club," announced the son of the Brooklyn Dodgers' loquacious president, "So I guess dad is giving me a chance to realize that ambition."

BARONS HOLD LEAD OVER ENTIRE LOOP

CLEVELAND, Jan. 23.—Cleveland's Barons, pace-setters of the Western division of the American Hockey league, held a total-points advantage on the entire league today.

The Barons moved ahead of the New Haven Eagles by trimming the Providence Reds, 7-3, here last night. Joe Jervaw and Ossie Asmundson accounted for three goals between them.

The victory gave the Barons an even break with Providence in the season series, each having won two games.

ELLER PAID MORE THAN NEWSOM, SAYS TRIBE'S BOSS

Bradley Hints That Indian Star Will Get $40,000; Best Paid Last Year

CLEVELAND, Jan. 23.—Alva Bradley, president of the Cleveland Indians, maintains that Bob Feller is the highest-paid pitcher in the history of baseball despite Detroit's claims for Buck Newsom.

Methods of bookkeeping may have something to do with it.

Neither club would reveal exact figures but here is how they stack up today.

Feller received a salary last year generally believed to have been $27,000. His bonuses and income from endorsements added something like $10,000 more.

Newsom was paid $30,000 last year including bonuses, said Walter O. Briggs, owner of the Tigers.

Newsom May Reach $35,000

"And he has signed his 1941 contract," Briggs added, indicating a raise in salary although nothing was said on that score. The most optimistic estimates placed the top possibility at $35,000.

To this, Bradley retorted: "Bob Feller is still the highest-paid pitcher in baseball; he was the highest-paid last year too."

To the assumption that Newsom's 1941 contract must call for more than $30,000, Bradley snapped: "So does Bob's. Feller still is the highest-paid."

Adding the $10,000 extras again places Feller's income above the $40,000 mark—and on that bookkeeping basis he apparently is tops.

BILLIARD TOURNEY IN SECOND ROUND

Gallagher First to Advance To Quarter Finals; 7 Entries Remain

The city championship billiards tournament was narrowed down to eight contenders this week as second round play got under way at the Recreation parlors.

The list of survivors was cut to seven Tuesday night when "Doc" Gallagher defeated Dean Beck, 130 to 65, in the second round opener. This win advances Gallagher into the quarter finals.

R. Thomas is leading the race for the $10 high run prize with a mark of 23.

The remaining second round qualifiers are R. Laubscher, J. Varianitis, Heston, Falcone, Nicklason and M. Montgomery.

The week's schedule follows:

Heston vs. Falcone, tonight at 7:30; Nicklason vs. Montgomery, Friday at 7:30 p.m.; Laubscher vs. Varianitis, Saturday at 7 p.m.

The three winners of these contests will qualify for the quarter finals along with Gallagher.

"HONEYMOON PREFERRED" by May Christie

SYNOPSIS

How could she win back Walter Mallory, well known lawyer? That was the question uppermost in the mind of Jean Garrett, lovely young debutante as she danced with Tommy Alden, society playboy at the Yacht Club. A few nights previous, Walter had told her he would not be third man in a party which included philandering Pedro de Moraes and Tommy, and had dropped out of the picture. To add to Jean's chagrin, he was squiring the beauteous Helen Hobart tonight. Overhearing a remark that Walter was planning a party aboard his yacht later that night, Jean contrives to see him alone, hoping he will invite her. He treats her coldly and refuses to permit a photographer to take their pictures together, sarcastically remarking, "Press agent stuff isn't my line." Piqued because Walter didn't invite her either, Helen Hobart induces Tommy to slip out of the club with her and board Walter's cruiser, "Stormy Petrel," for a fast ride.

CHAPTER THREE

Jean was alarmed for Tommy as she saw them sneak out the back entrance. Were they heading for his car? He mustn't be allowed to drive in his condition. There'd be an accident, or an arrest for drunken driving. Tommy was her guest, and she felt responsible for him.

Although it went against the grain, she hurried out after the pair. Saw that they were down by Walter's beautiful white cruiser, the Stormy Petrel!

She followed them into the cockpit. No one else was aboard, apparently. She begged: "Tommy, please come ashore! You haven't any right here, and you know it!"

Helen whispered: "I only brought him out for a breath of fresh air. Humor him for a minute. I've some bromide in my handbag, and I'm going to run in the galley for a glass of water, and we'll sober him up." She was gone.

To her horror, Jean saw Tommy turn on the switch. He pulled out the choke, put his finger on the self-starter, and the engine ran in neutral. He yelled: "Helen, unfasten the bow-line!"

"Stop it! Don't!" But it was too late. Helen had already done so! Jean rushed out of the cockpit just as Helen leapt back to the pier. Tommy threw in the clutch at the side of the steering wheel and opened the throttle. The boat sprang forward. Helen had tricked her! She was trapped!

"Hurrah, Jean!" Tommy shouted gleefully. "Howya like being a bold buccaneer?"

Under his fuddled guidance, as the boat sprang forward, it scraped the paint from the craft alongside, narrowly missing collision with a yacht.

Jean was shocked and terrified. "For heaven's sake, Tommy, put back!" she implored.

There were shouts from sailors in charge of the second boat. Jean had a glimpse of outraged faces in the moonlight. The boat swerved dizzily, then they were out in the open river, going at full speed.

Fearful, she tried to stop him—tried to grab the wheel.

"Say, water was never my beverage, Jean!" I don't wanna be m'ong the fishes on a cold night! I'll be."

No use to battle with him. She knew nothing of handling this high-powered craft. Her only hope lay in handling Tommy. Helen had deliberately put her in this predicament. It would complete the break with Walter!

"By following them down here, I played right into her hands!" But, innately fair, Jean couldn't be actually sure of it. Maybe Helen had really meant to stay on the speedboat but, hearing the engine start up, had followed the instinct of self-preservation?

Tommy, as the river fairly churned under them, exulted: "I'm giving her the works! She's a beauty, Oh, boy!"

"But Walter wants her, Tommy! He and his friends will be at the pier by now. When the finds his boat gone, there'll be terrible trouble!"

"Shush! Don't crab! The devil with Walter! I wanna win my bet with Walter! I wanna win my bet with Walter!"

"Who made the bet with you?"

But she was now pretty sure.

A sly, teasing look came in the blurred eyes. "Wouldn't you like to know, Jean? But I promised on word of honor as gentleman t'keep it a secret!"

"But what was the bet about?"

"Making speed record! Thash my shespahity!" He named a spot far up the river. "I phone the Yacht Club—minute we get there—and win hundred bucks!"

Ghostlike in the moonlight, the banks flew past.

The heartening hope struck her that there might be a sailor asleep aboard the cruiser! She'd go below, to investigate. She'd wake him, and he'd take over, and get them safely back to the Yacht Club.

The cold air penetrated her sail gown as she hastened to the steep stairs. The sleeping quarters were empty. She felt the last door. It opened. She felt for the switch, and light flooded the small cabin.

Walter's photograph was on the dresser. Those keen eyes smiled at her under his peaked sailing cap!

Because of his snub at the party and her present wretched predicament, that smile saddened her. She hurled photograph and frame to the floor. There was a sharp tinkle of glass.

"Ouch! That's unlucky!" She knew now that she wanted that picture. Wanted to possess it, no matter how he had acted. She removed the photograph. Flung frame and broken fragments through the open porthole.

The broken glass had cut the funniest little scar over his left eyebrow. Now he was looking at her with the identical expression he had had at the club when he had quirked that left eyebrow at her . . . as if she couldn't get away from his disapproval.

A challenging chin. A tight-lipped, fascinating mouth.

To her surprise, she pressed her lips against that mouth of Walter Mallory.

"Conflict, huh? Feud? If you knew how I felt about you, we'd never quarrel, darling!" she whispered softly. And slipped the picture into the low-cut bodice of her evening gown.

Curiosity drew her attention to the main cupboard of the cabin. His clothes would be in there, perhaps . . . and, if they ever had their honeymoon, hers, also? She must take just one peek.

She locked, blinked, gasped. A woman's orchid pajamas hung in that cupboard. Pale blue satin negligee. Swansdown-frilled mules.

Her face twisted wryly as she muttered: "This is a honeymoon cabin!" And a sickening feeling of jealousy caught her. She firmly dashed up the steep companionway.

Hark! What was that? A weird hooting from another vessel. The owners were wigwagging lights at them!

"Tommy!" She rushed to the cockpit. "We're being followed! It's Walter! Please stop!"

"Never!" It's a swell race! I gotta win that bet!"

In his excitement he swerved sharply. Jean lost her balance and slipped sideways. Her head hit the deck, and the skirt of her frail gown caught on something, ripping it badly in front, and leaving a gap between skirt and bodice.

"Hey, what's the big idea?" a stentorian voice bawled. "Why don't you stop when you're ordered?"

The patrol came aboard.

She was dazed by her fall. The siren of the other boat had a banshee moan now. Blood-curdling after its shrieking. She staggered to her feet.

Tommy was exulting: "If that gang think they're going to catch up on us, they're crazy!"

A shot rang out. He paled. His eyes had a glassy stare. His trembling hand cut off the power as he quavered: "Take the wheel, Jean! I'll have a look—" He lurched out of the cockpit.

Ping! A bullet crashed into the mast, cutting it in two, showering splinters everywhere. Simultaneously he let out a howl, clutching his right arm.

"They got me!" Jean's terrified eyes saw a trickle of red from his coat sleeve.

She let go the wheel. The boat swayed round. She got to Tommy. He lurched against her. Blood from the flesh wound spattered her blouse.

"It's a splinter from the mast," she cried. She pulled the long, sharp spike of wood from his torn sleeve and ripped off his coat. "Give me your hanky and I'll fix it!"

She fumbled, still dazed from her fall. Tommy was gaping at his gory arm. Neither saw the police boat come alongside. They didn't look up till they heard the grating of the grappling hook.

"Hey, what's the big idea?" a stentorian voice bawled. "Why don't you stop when you're ordered?"
